ANDREWS GENEALOGY

Introduction

I had been filling out the Andrews' family tree and I found the material so interesting that I thought the later generations might be interested to see what I found, so that this little book has been the outcome.

I have given all the descendants of Alexander Edward Andrews, his ancestors direct in line starting with Robert of Boxford, Mass., also their wives' ancestors starting with the first settler in this country of each line.

In the appendix the ancestors of the wives of the Andrews' line are given.

The abbreviations used are as follows: m., married; b., born; bapt., baptized; d., died. The arabic numbers before the children's names identify the description of that person subsequently. The Roman numerals tell at a glance the number of children in the family:

For example on page 1 John appears as 6-V John² (see below 6), the sixth person in the direct line. The Arabic number "6" identifies the person described on page 1. The Roman numeral V indicates that he was the fifth child of Robert¹. The generation in relation to the first settler is indicated by a note "2" that he is in the second generation.

History of Andrews Family says:-

The Greek word ανήρ pronounced with the long sound of the last a, Anar, signifies a man in the most comprehensive sense.

The Latin word Andreas signifies a man or manly, or like a man.

The English word Andrew means the same. Andrew, the disciple, was the first to have the name, probably as he had a manly spirit. It is supposed that after the crucifixion this apostle preached in Scythia, Greece and Epirus and finally suffered martyrdom at Patrae in Achaia A. D. 62 or 70 on a Cross called St. Andrew's Cross formed thus: X. This appears on the Coat of Arms also a Moor's Head above. St. Andrew is the Patron Saint of Scotland. Communication between the Jewish provinces and Rome would naturally take the name of the latter place, and it would become coined in the Latin language.

When the name became established once as a familiar one with the Romans, it naturally spread through Christendom to every place where the Roman arms were victorious or Christian religion established.

We find the name all over Europe: Andrea in Italy, Andreas in Germany; Andre and Andrieux in France, Andres in Spain, and Andrew with its various terminations and corruptions in England. Like many English names it has various terminations.

Sources

These are some of the endings: Andrew, Andrews, Andrewes, Andros, Andross, Andrus, Andruss, Andras, Anders, Androse, Androwes, Androuse, Andores.

The greatest number of people in this country named Andrews are of English origin.

Meaning of Freemen

"To become a freeman each person was legally required to be a respectable member of some Congregational Church. Persons were made freemen by the General Court of the Colony, and also by quarterly courts of the countries. None but freemen could hold offices or vote for rulers. This regulation was so far modified by Royal order, in 1664 as to allow individuals to be made freemen who could obtain certificates of their being correct in doctrine and conduct from a clergyman acquainted with them."

Old and New Style Dating

"For twelve hundred years or more, previous to 1752, in most Christian countries the year commenced the 25th of March, and is designated as O. S. - Old Style. In 1753, by an act of Parliament, in England and in all of her dominions, the year was made to commence Jan. 1st and designated N.S. or New Style. In this book dates conform to new style."

JOHN ANDREWS

Born 1648

Died before 1731

"Capt. John Andrews², born about 1648, son of Robert and Grace Andrews. He was made a freeman in Oct. 1690. He was a husbandman and lived in Boxford, buying land 'in ye Chestnut country or nutfield' in 1714. He was styled 'gentleman' from 1720 to 1725. He married Sarah Dickinson, daughter of James and Rebecca Dickinson, Apr. 18, 1684 (for the Dickinson family see Dickinson Genealogy in Appendix)."

Essex Antiquarian

I have a deed that John made out in 1720 to his son Robert, selling land of 85 acres and more, part of the land was where Robert's dwelling stood. In the History of Boxford by Perley, John left family homestead to his son Robert and Robert in turn left it to his son Nathan.

The dates of John and Sarah's deaths are not known: she was living in 1725 and he was deceased in 1731.

Children born in Boxford:-

REV. EDWARD ANDREWS

Born July 26, 1792

Died Mar. 5, 1867

Rev. Edward Andrews⁶, born July 26, 1792, in Ipswich, son of Asa and Joanna (Heard) Andrews. He graduated from Harvard College in 1810 and then studied law in his father's office. He had the highest honors of his class.

He married Elizabeth Harpur, Apr. 19, 1820, daughter of Robert and Myra (Lackey) Harpur of Harpursville, N.Y. (for the Harpur Family see Harpur Genealogy in Appendix). Her father taught in Kings College (Columbia) mathematics for fifteen years.

An Obituary in the Binghamton paper in 1867 says of Edward Andrews:

"In 1816 at twenty-four years he was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of his native state. A year later the Hon. Albion K. Paris, then member of Congress from Massachusetts, in a letter speaks of him as among the foremost of the members of the bar, in point of talent and he added 'He has the confidence and esteem of all with whom he is associated.'

"He at once entered upon an extensive and lucrative law practice, and his prospects of acquiring both fame and fortune in his chosen profession, were peculiarly flattering. Scarcely, however, had two years elapsed, before the sudden death of a beloved brother, John Dudley, and sister, Elizabeth Ann, in a week, affected him deeply - he decided to pursue a regular course of theological study. At the age of twenty-six having obtained a license to preach, he was appointed by the Presbyterian Board of Missions a traveling missionary for Western New York. In the then unsettled state of the country, in the main a wilderness, he pursued his mission on horseback, traveling from school-house to school-house preaching. After continuing his missionary labors for some time, he finally took charge of a congregation at Norwich in Broome County. He was subsequently Principal of the Oxford Academy on Fort Hill about 1830, delivered the dedicatory address at its opening. About this time he made the acquaintance of the celebrated Bishop Hobart, and as a result of conversations and discussions with him, in 1827 took orders in the Episcopal Church. After officiating as an Episcopal Clergyman at different points, the last being St. Andrews Church until 1837, he was called in 1837 to the charge of Christ Church, Binghamton, where he continued his public ministrations until just before his death in 1867. He was a fine scholar and orator, and had few equals in his day.

"Dr. Andrews was of delicate physique and of a highly nervous temperament. He was of a social disposition, warm and sympathetic in his feelings, frank, outspoken, and friendly. In conversation he was peculiarly brilliant. There was an animation, terseness and vigor of expression, and a wealth of thought and illustration in his private discourse, which gave to even ordinary

ALEXANDER EDWARD ANDREWS

Born Apr. 11, 1834

Died Feb. 13, 1908

Alexander Edward Andrews⁷, born Apr. 11, 1834, son of Rev. Edward and Elizabeth (Harpur) Andrews in New Berlin, N. Y. He graduated from Hobart College in 1853. He was a student of law in the office of the Honorable Daniel S. Dickinson and was admitted to the bar in 1855. He married Mary Dwight Howard of Springfield, Mass., Oct. 31, 1860, daughter of Charles and Elizabeth Buckminster (Dwight) Howard. (For Howard Family see Howard Genealogy in Appendix.)

He spent most of his life in Binghamton, N. Y. He was selected as the first recorder (city judge) of Binghamton in 1867, and served until 1873. He was in the State Assembly two terms in 1878 and again in 1880. Alex had a prominent part in helping in the growth of the city when it was passing through its most important period of development.

An Obituary in the Binghamton papers 1908 says of Alex Andrews:-

"Not long before the ending of his term, a matter of local interest came before the legislature which many leading men and firms in this city petitioned Mr. Andrews to use all proper and legitimate means to defeat. Whether through Mr. Andrews efforts or not, the objectionable measure was killed.

"The record, which Mr. Andrews made during the session of the last Legislature, is one that any man might well be proud to leave as a golden heritage to his children. Among the temptations and blandishments that always surround our legislative bodies, and the persuasive ways of bad and scheming men, he was not only true to every interest of his constituents, but to himself. He was one of the few at whom, even suspicion never dared to point its slimy finger or sully his name with its poisoned tongue."

Another of his activities, as well as a lawyer, was being a real estate dealer.

Mr. Andrews was a genial, kind hearted gentleman, highly esteemed by all of his acquaintances. He died Feb. 13, 1908. His wife was born Oct. 12, 1835, and died Sept. 26, 1904.

Children:-

- 49-III Robert Harpur⁸, b. Apr. 7, 1868; d. Apr. 14, 1868.
- 50-IV James Hayward⁸, b. Dec. 28, 1871, on Chenango Street where the Arlington Hotel stands, Binghamton. He went to school in Binghamton, then later to a school in Duxbury, Mass. James then returned to Binghamton and entered the fire insurance business. He later organized the Andrews Fire Adjustment Company. June 1, 1897, he married Louise Ely Hagaman of Binghamton, daughter of Robert Hagaman and Louise Griswold Ely. He was a member of the Binghamton Chamber of Commerce. He was a mason and a member of the Elks, Binghamton Country Club, and Binghamton Automobile Club. He was a vestryman at Christ Episcopal Church. As public safety commissioner, he played a prominent role in the investigation and ramifications of the failure of the State Bank of Binghamton in Dec. 1930. As Commissioner he was liked for his sense of fairness and his ability to understand human frailty. He was active in Republican party affairs in Broome County for many years, before being named Commissioner. Mr. Andrews was well thought of in Binghamton. He had plenty of friends there and deserved them because he was a true friend to many. He died July 10, 1947, age 75, without children, leaving a widow.

ANDREWS-REDD

CHARLES HOWARD ANDREWS⁸, born Nov. 22, 1861, son of Alexander Edward and Mary Dwight (Howard) Andrews in Binghamton, New York, on Chenango Street where the Arlington Hotel now stands. He graduated from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and worked two years in Lock Haven, Pennsylvania; two years in Chicago, Illinois, and went west in 1885. Charles Howard, called Howard, had drug stores in Harrison, Carney and Cozad, Nebraska. He did much for the sick as the doctor was one hundred miles away and there was no one else. When his brother Ned was kicked in the head by a horse and his ear was hanging by a thread, Howard sewed it up and was always very proud of the results. On another occasion a little girl was bitten by a rattlesnake and he saved her life.

He met Clara Redd, daughter of Nathaniel and Martha (Harvey) Redd and married her in Crawford, Nebraska, Dec. 4, 1888. She was born July 4, 1869, in Elgin, Iowa, and died May 1944, in Brooklyn, N. Y. Howard died March 24, 1943, in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Howard was a very lovable and generous person. (There was nothing too much that he would not do if it were possible to achieve.)

ANDREWS-HAYWARD

EDWARD AUGUSTINE ANDREWS⁸, b. Sept. 21, 1863, in Binghamton, New York, on Chenango Street, where the Arlington Hotel now stands, son of Alexander Edward Andrews and Mary Dwight (Howard). He married Margaret Greenleaf Hayward, (first cousin) daughter of James Warren and Sarah Bancroft (Howard) Hayward, June 8, 1901. (For the Hayward Family see the Hayward Genealogy.)

His son Dwight writes:- "Edward went to school in Binghamton, but due to bad health was advised to go on a farm, which he did at the age of 16 (1879). He spent one year at Petersham and then went west to Greeley, Colorado (1880), where he spent the winters, and went to work on the Brewster ranch in Hat Creek Basin, Warbonnet, Nebraska, A-B Ranch during the summers. This cow punching he continued until 1885 when he took up a timber claim (35 acres) and a regular claim (120 acres) from the government.

"In 1886, as, what is now the Chicago Northwestern R. R., was being pushed through the west, and settlements sprang up, Mr. Andrews and his brother, Charles Howard, were important factors in forming the town of Harrison, Nebraska; naming and organizing Sioux County, and building the County Court House in Harrison. Father raised horses in his claim until 1892 when he came East with a car load of his animals, which he brought to Binghamton and sold."

His daughter Betsy writes:- "Father said, 'The Virginian (a horseman of the Plains)' by Owen Wister gave the life he knew in the west.

"He used to tell many stories of his experiences in the Old West as he remembered it from 1880 to 1892. There were no fences so the cattle roamed freely over the range. In the spring they would round up the cattle and cut off the calves for branding. The cowboys would also round up and cut off cattle that were ready to be sold at market and sent east.

"If a stampede was started by a terrified steer, the cowpunchers would have to keep going round the herd until the cattle in the center finally locked horns. The men might have to ride all night until the trouble makers were quiet. Father put tobacco juice in his eyes to keep awake.

"When Mr. Andrews was a tenderfoot the men had stunts for him to do in order to break him in. They poured whiskey down his throat, and got him to hunt 'snipe' on a dark night. (There was no such a thing as a snipe.) Also shoot at skunks that had been thrown into the air. You can imagine the results.

"The most dangerous feat the men got him to do was to lasso and kill an old bull buffalo. Fortunately, father trusted his old seasoned horse absolutely, for the horse knew when to have the lasso loose and when to have it taut. Otherwise father would have been thrown and trampled to death by the buffalo. The tighter the lasso held around the buffalo's hairy neck and mane the more enraged the animal became and the more he struggled, until, thanks to the practiced steed, the buffalo fell exhausted, and father could then shoot him. We have the horns of the old bull buffalo brought home by the hero.

"The mountain lions or pumas, that looked like small lionesses, enjoyed eating calves. One night a mountain lion got into the corral. He killed and dragged away a young calf. Two Mexicans trailed and shot the mountain lion in the hills beyond the ranch. Father brought the skin home and had it made into a rug. He also brought home coyote skins which were also used for small mats.

"He was very fond of the horses he raised on his claim. One day a mare came whinnying to the window. Father found the horse had a snake bite on the neck. A bottle of turpentine was tipped over and held on the spot. The poison came into the bottle. The horse shook her head and went neighing away, as much as to say, 'Thank you.'

"Father tried raising mellons on his land one summer, which unfortunately proved to be citrons. He had so many he didn't know what to do with them, as a little citron goes a long way.

"One day while father was chopping wood for his stove the axe slipped and he cut his foot quite badly. He put up a white flag outside then hobbled into the cabin and fixed his foot upright to help stop bleeding. The stove was fast going out making it very cold for the injured man. Fortunately a passer-by saw the white signal, came in, thereby saving father's life.

"His brother Howard at another time sewed up father's ear when he had been kicked by a horse. (At the back of the book I show the cabin father lived in and helped to build. The picture was taken in 1887 at Warbonnet, Nebraska.)

"The life the cowboys lived in Nebraska, Wyoming, and Colorado was strenuous, but never had any dull moments. Unoccupied hours they would write knitting directions, which were impossible to follow, but were published in the papers just the same. Some men wrote to marriage bureaus for lonely hearts. Only one of the marriages from the bureau worked out happily and that one was a great success.

"Father was glad to see the east again after 12 years. He was not much of a walker after being on the western plains, as he had been so used to riding a horse everywhere he went. In 1926 he took his family to visit Nebraska and found it so much changed that it did not make him want to stay. The romance was all gone for him."

His son continues:- "He shortly moved to Cambridge where he started work in the East Cambridge freight yards of the Boston & Albany Railroad, where he worked up to the position of head freight agent. He withdrew in 1903 because of overwork. He remained in Cambridge and became active in social work. He took particular interest in the organization of the Cambridge Tuberculosis and Health Association, which he joined in 1904. He held the office of president in the year 1913-14. He took social work courses at Harvard in 1909, and started in the Real Estate and Insurance Business in Harvard Square in 1914. He continued in this capacity under his own name until May, 1920, when he formed with Benjamin P. Ellis the present firm of Ellis & Andrews. He retired in 1930 and died September 28, 1936, in Cambridge."

Ned was well balanced, gentle but firm. In young manhood, he overcame many difficulties and started his own real estate business in which he did well. Ned had a dry sense of humor. He knew how to be just but firm in bringing up his family. All his business affairs were always kept up to date and bills were paid promptly. The family turned to him for advice as he had excellent judgment.

He was a Charter Member of the Cambridge Boat Club and a member of the Colonial Club, 1910-1917, and the Cambridge Real Estate Exchange.

His wife Daisy, as he called her, died Mar. 4, 1936 in Cambridge.

DWIGHT HAYWARD ANDREWS⁹, born February 13, 1908, son of Edward A. and Margaret Greenleaf (Hayward) Andrews of Cambridge. He went to Buckingham and Browne and Nichols Schools in Cambridge, and then later the Gunnery School in Washington, Connecticut. He graduated from Bowdoin College in 1931. Dwight spent the summer of 1931 traveling in Europe, hiring a car and going over 5000 miles with his friend Pete Phelps. It was a most exciting experience. He is a real estate broker's partner in the firm of Ellis and Andrews, Harvard Square. He married Julia Matilda Shreve Wallace, daughter of Henry Edward Wallace and Julia Elmo Miller of Jamaica Plain, Mass. (both parents formerly of Philadelphia, Pa.), October 5, 1940. He was in the Army of World War II for two years till 1946. He served in Replacement Depots of the U. S. Army Ground Forces, first at Fort George G. Mead, Md., then Camp Adair, Oregon and Camp Pickett, Va.

ANDREWS-HOPKINSON

HELEN WRIGHT ANDREWS⁸, born Sept. 29, 1875, in Binghamton, N. Y., on Chenango Street, where the Arlington Hotel now stands, daughter of Alexander and Mary D. (Howard) Andrews. She went to school in Binghamton. In 1887 she and her mother visited her brother Ned in Harrison, Nebraska, living in the cabin he had helped to build, and enjoying her horse Nellie which her brother provided for her.

Helen graduated from Framingham Normal School in 1895 and taught ten years before she was married in July 14, 1906, to Dr. George Hopkinson, son of Henry Malcolm Hopkinson and Sarah C. Rigby. (For the Hopkinson Family see Hopkinson Genealogy in Appendix.)

Her daughter writes of her:- "Mother described herself and certainly was a 'realist'; she could face facts squarely no matter how tough they were and adjust herself to them with a willing and gracious spirit. Hers was a very powerful personality; everyone she knew, and especially George and I, leaned on her for sympathy and encouragement whenever a hurdle appeared. She gave of herself to her family and friends until she was spent physically and emotionally. I'm sure that it shortened her life, but, if she had it to do over again, she would do it the same way because she was intensely interested in other people, rejoiced over their joys, mourned over their sorrows. What kindness and warmth. What I miss the most, I think, is mother's wonderful sense of humor. Even in her darkest hours there was always something that she could find to laugh about and make others laugh. A rare gift.

"You can't write anything about mother without mentioning that she was a 'Unitarian,' born, bred and practicing. There was nothing she enjoyed more than a spirited religious discussion. She held her own mighty well too.

"She kept up her interests outside the home remarkably well, read a good deal, took a vital interest in politics, education, etc. and was President of the Parent-Teachers Association in Akron."

Helen assumed the responsibilities of the Berkeley Preparatory School for two years following the death of her husband in 1933. Helen died January 9, 1943.

Dr. Hopkinson was born October 20, 1873, in Rangoon, India, where his father had a missionary assignment, and was brought to the United States when he was three years old. Dr. Hopkinson graduated from Brown University in 1896 and Harvard Medical School in 1905. He was an Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat doctor and practiced in New York City, Akron, Ohio, and Boston. In 1907 he founded the Berkeley Preparatory School and was an unusually fine teacher. Dr. Hopkinson directed and taught in the School until near his death, May 27, 1933.

HOPKINSON-GRAY

GEORGE HOPKINSON, JR.⁹, born Mar. 22, 1909, son of George and Helen Wright (Andrews) Hopkinson. He went to Exeter Academy, Harvard University, 1932, and Harvard Business School, 1934.

George married Helen Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Gray of Utica, New York, June 23, 1936. He worked in the Bankers Trust Company, New York City, and later entered the Army choosing the Quartermaster Corps. He was honorably discharged in 1947 as a Major.

George went to Korea with the Army but later was a civilian working with the Military Government. He was in the Foreign Exchange Bank with several Koreans and one other American, Walter Smith. He died of Polio in Seoul about June 27, 1950.

Hopkinson displayed moral courage in difficult situations. He liked all kinds of people. He had real ability in sizing up men and women.

As a boy George used to be mechanical, fixing his car the "Cricket," and also the radio. He was an excellent mimic. One summer he took the part of a negro in a play at Wardsboro, Vermont, and did a good job.

Hoppy, as he was called, was happy in his banking work in Korea. He was much pleased to have a son after he had been married eleven years.

Helen taught school at Cold Spring, New York. She has a fine singing voice, and was a soloist in numerous churches.

BRADSTREET GENEALOGY

First Generation

"GOV. SIMON BRADSTREET¹, son of Rev. Simon and Margaret Bradstreet, was baptized Mar. 18, 1603, in Horbling, Lincolnshire, England. His father was a Vicar, fellow of Emmanuel College, bred as a Puritan and joined the non-conformist party."

The Essex Antiquarian says:- "Gov. Bradstreet went to Emmanuel College a year, and at the age of sixteen was tutor or governor of young Lord Rich, son of the Earl of Warwick. On the death of his father, Simon entered the service of the Earl of Lincoln, as assistant of steward Thomas Dudley, at Sempringham, where he stayed eight years. In 1628, he married (Governor) Thomas Dudley's daughter, Ann. Later he was steward for the dowager countess of Warwick. Deciding to remove to America, in ship Arbella, March 29, 1630, he joined the Winthrop Company, and was chosen an assistant before they left England. He was secretary of the Mass. Bay Colony from his arrival in America in 1630 to 1643; assistant, 1630-1678; deputy governor, 1678, 1679; governor of Massachusetts Bay Colony, 1679-1686, 1689-1692. He lived in Salem, 1630, 1631; Cambridge, 1631-1638; Ipswich, 1639-1643; Andover, 1644-1673, building first mill on Cochickewick River; Boston, 1674-1690; and Salem, 1695-1697. His wife Ann (Dudley) died in Andover, Sept. 16, 1672, aged sixty. She was the first American Poetess. In his home life he was a tender father and loving husband. He took pride in his wife's poetical talents, and greatly mourned her death.

To My Dear and Loving Husband by Ann Bradstreet

If ever two were one, then surely we;
If ever man were loved by wife, then thee;
If ever wife was happy in a man,
Compare with me ye women if you can.
I prize thy love more than whole mines of gold,
Or all the riches that the East doth hold.
My love is such that rivers cannot quench,
Nor ought but love from thee give recompense.
Thy love is such I can no way repay,
The heavens reward thee manifold I pray.
Then while we live, in love let's so persevere,
That when we live no more, we may live, ever.

"He married second, Ann (Downing), sister of George and daughter of Emmanuel Downing, widow of Capt. Joseph Gardner of Salem, in 1676, the antenuptial agreement, being dated May 7, 1676. Governor Bradstreet died in Salem, Mar. 27, 1697, at the age of 94, being called 'the nector of New England.'

"His second wife survived him, being known as 'Madam Bradstreet,' and died in Salem, April 19, 1713, aged 79.

"Governor Bradstreet was one of the more substantial and able supporters of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. He was head of the moderate party when the king demanded the charter, and he suffered the reproach of those who objected to its surrender. He strenuously opposed Andross. When the people put down the latter's authority, they made Mr. Bradstreet their president. He was in service of the colony 62 years. He was puritanic in his religion, and prosecuted the Quakers so severely that the Bishop in New England, judged by the Spirit of the Lord, called him 'a man hardened in blood and a cruel persecutor.' He was, however, opposed to the witchcraft delusion.

"Governor Bradstreet prevented the execution of the sentence passed on Elizabeth Morse (one of the best of Christian women) by courageous use of his prerogative in defiance of public clamor and the wrath of the representatives of the whole people of the Colony."

Upham says:- "that Bradstreet was living at the age of 90 at Salem during the witchcraft prosecutions in 1692, but old as he was and perilous as it was he made known his entire disapproval of them."

T. Dudley & S. Bradstreet Ipswich Hist. Soc. pub.

"He was a just magistrate judged by the times, possessing prudence, sound judgment, and strict integrity. Believing fully in his mission, he sought usefulness rather than popularity."

HARPUR GENEALOGY

First Generation

ROBERT HARPUR¹, born Jan. 25, 1731, son of Andrew Harpur and Elizabeth Creighton in Ballybay, County of Monaghan, (North) Ireland. His parents who were Presbyterians had left Scotland to escape civil and religious discord shortly before 1731. They were firm in Robert's training. On one occasion his mother forbade his going to the well saying that she should whip him if he did. Robert disobeyed and fell into the well - from which he was drawn with difficulty. The punishment was administered just the same. He never forgot the circumstance nor her firmness in keeping her promises. He always mentioned his mother with profound respect. He was well educated, graduating from Glasgow University. He came to America, Sept. 1, 1761, and immediately he was employed as Professor of mathematics in Kings College (now Columbia University) where he remained for fifteen years until 1776. At that time the college was used as a hospital for the Revolution. He stayed by America in the War which most of the professors did not do.

While teaching he tutored John Jay and Alexander Hamilton. When he heard of the duel and Alexander being shot, he wrote in a notebook:

"O, Hamilton. how could'st thou cast away that life which all the United States knew was of infinite importance to gratify the resentment of the disappointed ambition of Aaron Burr."

He married first, Elizabeth Crygier of New York, daughter of Simon Crygier, September 29, 1773, by whom he had two daughters and one son. She died September 16, 1777 in Kingston, N. Y., where they had moved. The British destroyed his library of books which was a great loss to him.

He married second, Myra Lackey, daughter of Alexander and Margaret (Griffith) Lackey of New York City, April 30, 1789. She was bapt. Sept. 1, 1773. She died June 27, 1806, age 32. He died April 15, 1825, age 94.

He was granted land of 35,000 acres from Lake George to South Bay, May 22, 1765, in what was then Albany County. No white pine could be destroyed that would be good to make masts for Great Britain's ships. Settlers were brought from Ireland to raise flax and hemp, but found the land wholly unsuited for it. Mr. Harpur paid off the people on the land. There are no papers to tell what Robert Harpur did with it afterwards.

He was granted 20,000 acres in 1790 by the State of N. Y. in the region of Broome County where Harpursville is situated. He left New York City in 1795 with his young wife, baby, Robert - 2 years, and son, Warren - 18 years. They went by sloop, then wagons. It was a hard journey along the mountainous roads between the Hudson River and the banks of the Susquehannah River. He had visited these lands before and had saw and grist mills erected at considerable expense. Mr. Harpur was over 60 years of age at the time. As his daughter Elizabeth said, "He was entirely inexperienced in the mode of living upon which he now entered, and of the business attendant upon the occupation and disposing of landed property." She writes of him "that he had turned his back upon all that was familiar to him and undertaken a business and living to which he was a total stranger. He never showed any sign he regretted the step."

He was a member of the Provincial Congress which adjourned July 8, 1775. Robert Harpur was appointed as one of a Committee of Safety from the Congress Group to open all letters directed to Congress and answer them. He was a member of the Assembly from the Southern District of New York for eight years and was Secretary of the first Board of Regents of which Gov. Clinton was Chancellor.

In 1780, Mr. Harpur was appointed Deputy Secretary of the State under Governor Clinton, in which office he remained until his removal to his lands on the Susquehannah in 1795, then in the County of Montgomery (now called Broome).

His daughter Mary Ann writes:- "Secretary Harpur was a man of the most indomitable will, he was possessed of a feeling heart, the poor always found a friend in him, every living thing was looked upon as worthy of his attention and care. He was fond of pets. While professor at King's College, he had a mouse which would come from its hiding place, sip tea from his saucer, and sleep in the hollow at the back of his neck.

"In Religion, as well as Politics he was fearless. Neither fear or favor ever prevented his administering a salutary rebuke for anyone who should utter a blasphemous word in his presence."

He was a great admirer of Thomas Jefferson. Robert once remarked "I have adopted America and shall be faithful to my word."

Children by 1st wife:-

- 2-I Susan Elinor², b. Aug. 12, 1774; d. Aug. 12, 1775.

First Generation

"JOHN HOWARD¹, born about 1628; he came with his brother George from England and settled in Duxbury when he was about fifteen years old. He was among those able to bear arms there in 1643. He lived in the family of Capt. Miles Standish who came from Shorely, Lancashire, England. He soon removed to Bridgewater and was one of the original settlers and proprietors of that town. He was of much influence in the new plantation.

"In 1645 his name appears as one of the 54 original proprietors of the grant of land known as Bridgewater. He was a Freeman in 1657. He was appointed Ensign, Sept. 27, 1664, and fought Indians in King Philips War. June 5, 1678, he was deputy to the General Court of Massachusetts, also at the same time selectman of the town. In 1683, he with Thomas Hayward (son of Thomas Hayward the first Hayward settler) (See Hayward Genealogy) was a Representative to the General Court. Oct. 2, 1689, he became Lieutenant. Mr. Howard was a carpenter by trade. He spelled his name Haward and so did his descendants until after 1700. He married Martha Hayward, daughter of Thomas Hayward, one of the original proprietors of Bridgewater, who came over on the ship Hercules in 1635 from Sandwich, County of Kent, England, with five children and three brothers. John lived in a house which he built near the First Meeting House (Corner of Howard and River Streets). He kept a tavern in 1670 until his death in 1700, which was continued by his direct descendants until 1821. The house was taken down in 1838. His widow died before 1703.

"Without doubt one of the early distinguished visitors was Mary Chilton Winslow, the first lady who came on shore from the 'Mayflower'." (See Latham Genealogy)

"JONATHAN HOWARD², son of John, married Susanna, daughter of Rev. James Keith, Jan. 8, 1689, who probably died same year; she had no children. He, being 21 years of age or more in 1685, received one of the 'young men's shares', so called, a grant of land given to the young man who previously owned no land. He inherited from his father 49 acres of land where he lived, opposite where Frank L. Howard lived in 1903, together with other lots of outlying land. His active interest in the affairs of the church is shown by the fact that in 1694 he, with one other, was appointed by the town to inspect and take notice of any disorder among the young persons in the galleries of the church on the Lord's Day, and to declare them by name after the exercises were over. His estate was settled and divided in 1739. He married second, Sarah Dean, daughter of John and Sarah (Edson) Dean, about 1692 and had nine children, all born in Bridgewater (West Bridgewater)."

"BEZALEEL HOWARD⁵, son of Nathan and Jane (Howard) Howard, born Nov. 22, 1753; first married Lucinda, daughter of Jonathan and Margaret (Ashley) Dwight of Springfield, Dec. 13, 1785; she died Mar. 18, 1788, age 20; he married second, Prudence, daughter of Ezekiel and Prudence (Stoddard) Williams of Wethersfield, Conn., May 12, 1790. He was a corporal in Capt. Eliakim Howard's company, Col. Edward Mitchell's regiment; marched from Bridgewater to Braintree Neck, March 4, 1776; was in the service six days. Mr. Howard graduated from Harvard College in 1781, and became a clergyman; he was settled over the First Congregational Church in Springfield from 1785 to 1803. After that until 1809 he was the minister, but was unable to preach. In 1815 he became a Unitarian. He was sincere, frank and quaint."

John Howard of Bridgewater

Bezaleel could foresee real changes in the future. Col. Worthington and Mr. Howard were looking at the Connecticut River. Bezaleel said, "I shall live to see the day when there is a bridge across that river."

Col. Worthington who was very conservative replied, "Parson Howard, you talk like a fool."

He did see the prophesy fulfilled, as metal came in extensive use at the beginning of the 19th century. The substitution of steel for cast iron made possible much larger spans. In 1820 suspension bridges started in America. Col. Worthington died in 1800, so did not see the bridge.

Bezaleel loved to write little verses about his grandchildren. This is one of them:-

Tommy and Lizzie are busy.
Fannie is reading for life
Lucindie and Lizie are both half crazy,
And in perpetual strife.

Rev. Howard was one of the first incorporators of the Springfield Institution for Savings. His son John was their first treasurer. The Spur (a publication of that Bank) writes:- (Jan., 1928)

"When Parson Howard came to Springfield in 1784, he had to ride from Cambridge on horseback. At the Five-Mile House he was directed to a 'good bridle path by marked trees through the woods.'"

"He rode very fast because there had recently been a robbery in the vicinity."

"Finally, in order to enter the village he had to cross the 'Causeway.' This was a bridge of logs over the marsh near what is now State and Main Streets. When he reached that point, he looked around and hitched his horse in front of the white house across the street.

"He was not at all pleased with what he saw, for it was just after the Revolution and the village had a neglected and poverty-stricken appearance. Jonathan Dwight, Sr., and his daughter, who lived in the white house, soon made him forget his homesickness. Not long after, he was settled in Springfield as the pastor of the First Church. (He married Jonathan Dwight's daughter the next year, 1785.)

"We are told that 'Parson Howard,' as he was called, used to visit the schools every Saturday morning and hear the little ones recite the Catechism. His constant advice was, 'Boys, play, but always play fair.'

"It is said that Dr. Howard was a man of unusually pleasant disposition, good judgment and candor. That is why he was much loved by every one who knew him, and why Howard Street was named to honor his memory."

Parson Howard first lived in the parsonage by the First Church.

The Bezaleel Howard house is shown at the back of the book. Chapin's History says, "No. 29 Elm Street was the house of Charles Sheldon who built the house about the year 1772. In Feb., 1808, Rev. Bezaleel Howard bought the property and resided there until his death, Jan. 20, 1837." The house was torn down in 1900 to make an addition to the Court Square Theatre Building.

His wife was a sweet character, very religious, and kept much at home after Dr. Howard's death. She died Mar. 24, 1853, age 85.

CHARLES HOWARD⁶, son of Bezaleel and Prudence (Williams), born Mar. 21, 1794. Married first, Anna McCarthy Williams of Deerfield, 1818; married second, Elizabeth Buckminster, daughter of Col. Thomas and Hannah (Worthington) Dwight,* June 21, 1824. She was born Feb. 18, 1801; died Oct. 7, 1855. They resided in Springfield. He was educated in public schools in Springfield. His father sent him to Wilbraham Academy to prepare him for college, but Charles worked so hard his eyes gave out for a time, so he could not get that extra education. He was in business with Wells Lathrop from 1816 to 1824 when their business moved to South Hadley. He had little or nothing to do with the details of the business after that. They went into paper making and it failed in 1846. This was very hard for Mr. Howard.

Charles Howard bought the house on Maple Street and 6 children were born there, including Mary Dwight. They moved to the Armory Grounds the end of 1835. The house at Maple Street is shown at the back of the book. Also the Union Street house that was bought in 1841 when he left his government position.

Charles was paymaster at the United States Armory from 1829 to 1841, as long as the Jacksonian Democrats were in control of the government.

He was a member of the Legislature in 1829 and of the governor's council in 1843, chairman of the town selectmen in 1844 and an under officer in the Boston customhouse from 1846 to 1849. He took great comfort in his later years when the Democrats came back into power. He separated from the First Congregational Church with his father and helped to form the Unitarian Church in 1815, but in later years he was a Methodist and became active in that denomination. Mr. Howard lived a long and simple life. He was one of the great and most interesting historic figures of Springfield.

He had 10 children; one son and seven daughters grew up. He died Sept. 18, 1875.

His wife was one of the wisest and wittiest women. She was a very remarkable mother. They used to say, "It was worth a guinea a minute to be with Betsy."

* Col. John Worthington was a prominent citizen of Springfield before the Revolution, but being a Tory, after that he went into retirement. He was her father.

Sophia Chapin said of Betsy, "She was born a courtier but never courted. She and Charles were very devoted."

In writing to her son Tom, Mrs. Charles Howard writes:- "I earnestly hope that my children may all have about equal advantages for education that they may never think that any ill success they may meet with is the consequence of the lack of that great blessing."

LUCINDA ORNE⁷, born March 8, 1825, daughter of Charles and Elizabeth B. (Dwight) Howard. She was born in the Maple Street House. When her mother died in 1855 she took over the housekeeping and helped to care for the large family. When the Howard School started in 1863, she ran the house at Union Street. She was regarded with the warmest esteem by the pupils while the school flourished. She was much interested in the Springfield Hospital and did much to help it get started. She said to Lizzie Simmons, "Never mind what I say, I never call anyone a fool unless I am fond of her." She was mindful of the comforts of all, quick of speech, but kind beyond words. She was always looking for the happiness and convenience of the household. She died Jan. 24, 1899. There is a picture of the Maple Street house at the back of the book. Six children were born there.

A tribute was given by the Springfield Hospital after Lucinda's death. Written by the Clerk of the Board of Trustees, Charles W. Beckwith.

"Faithful to the last with zealous devotion to its beneficent work, unabated by increasing years, with steadfast faith in its future, and at the height of her own usefulness, she who may now be remembered as the Mother of this Hospital has been removed from her work among us.

"Lucinda Orne Howard was elected a Trustee of the first City Hospital, March 10, 1879. She was also made one of the original incorporators of the present Springfield Hospital, which succeeded the former organization December 24, 1883.

"Next to our President she was the oldest in office of all the living Trustees, and in a few weeks would leave completed her full 20 years of continuous service. She began her unselfish work in a new and untried field of charity. The Hospital was then in its infancy, a feeble institution, dependent solely for its scant support upon municipal aid, and struggling for existence at a period when the true purpose and inestimable value of the Hospital were not fully understood and appreciated.

"Inspired by her enthusiasm in the cause and her faith in its future, another noble woman was moved at that critical period in its history to make the first liberal endowment for its support.

"To Miss Howard's intense love of the work, guided as it was by a sympathetic and unselfish nature and her untiring activity and vigilant eye in the administration of its affairs, is due in large measure the success which has attended the development of this Institution.

"A pioneer in hospital work, she attracted to the field a goodly company of earnest and efficient women as co-laborers, who are making it a harvest of good in the community.

"We pay respects to a noble woman, whose example and influence should be an inspiration to all that labor for the alleviation of human suffering."

SOPHIA WORTHINGTON⁷, born Jan. 26, 1831, daughter of Charles and Elizabeth Buckminster (Dwight) Howard, in the Maple Street house, Springfield. After her schooling in Springfield, she met satisfying success, for she had a clear reasoning head and a definite manner of expression. She was a teacher in several schools and went to Mr. Young's School in Montreal in 1854. In 1860, she went to Fort Laramie, Nebraska, by covered wagon to teach now wife ~~Go. L. B.~~ Alexander's girls, where she remained three years. Her stay with the family was most agreeable. Later Kate Alexander went to the Howard School. Sophy, as she was called, wrote about her experiences at the Army Post for her nephews and nieces. (In Charles Howard Family Domestic History)

Her sister Emily started a school in 1861-62. In 1863 when Kate was well enough, she took over the school and Emmie retired. Sophy, who was very close to Kate, was Kate's right hand man in teaching. The School, called the Catharine Howard School, continued until 1890. When Catharine died it was a great loss to Sophy.

Mrs. Chapin writes:- "Miss Sophy's alert mind, keen judgment and somewhat more radical and critical temper were wonderful complements to her sister's. They both loved to know and use knowledge and had sympathy without sentimentality, also the power to make lessons interesting. Sophy loved to read and just before she died was reading Browning's Sardello and Emmie was reading her William James' Letters. Sophy belonged to the Browning Society in Springfield. She kept up with the times, reading three newspapers a day. She would sometimes scold, but she couldn't bear to hurt anyone's feelings. Sophy had the creative imagination to put herself in your place, which showed great understanding." She was like this to the last, always interested in the present day, with a great wit and much sympathy for one in need. She always kept busy knitting while talking. She also liked to play solitaire. Sophy died May 12, 1920, age 89.

CATHARINE LATHROP HOWARD⁷, born February 24, 1833, on Maple Street in Springfield, Mass., daughter of Charles and Elizabeth B. (Dwight) Howard. She had an unhappy childhood, not because of the atmosphere she lived in, but because she was so sensitive and afraid of doing wrong. Her Mother was remarkable with her and brought Kate out of that morbid state, so in womanhood "she had a most serene and happy faith in the love of God." She went to public school, then she went to two private schools, Miss Harding's School and Miss Campbell's. Her mother said of her, "She is the only child I have who is in love with study." She never was strong, but few knew how delicate she was. She had so much enthusiasm for her work she said she could forget anything when she was teaching.

She first taught at the Louis Agassiz School, Cambridge for several years beginning 1860. In 1863 she continued the school her sister Emmie had started. There were eighty day pupils, seven boarding at the school, and many boarding in private homes. At least 720 girls went to the school during the years 1863-1890. She followed Mr. Agassiz' system, having no examination papers in the courses and issuing no marks. Papers were written from time to time on various assignments for commentation, but there was no struggle to keep marks up for reports, which would then be sent home as in the present day method.

The course of study was preparatory for college but many married before they went to college. Miss Howard's school was in no sense a "finishing school" in the light sense of the word.

Being a scientist herself, she believed in the importance of mathematics. She made the subject most interesting under her teaching. She also taught writing, science, reading Shakespeare, and at the beginning, Latin.

Elizabeth R. Simmons, a dear friend and daughter of the Unitarian Minister, came in 1866 when Sally, Kate's sister, married. She taught latin and also drawing at the school for nine years.

English classics and composition were important. Miss Kate was always ready with encouragement for the student under her direction and her essential merit as a teacher was her own sturdy, upright, straight forward, Puritan philosophy of right and wrong. She was always glad to acknowledge a mistake, but so careful and desirous of not making them that she seldom erred. Her open mindedness and breadth made her a delightful student and she was never a pedant. She knew how to draw out the best there was in the girls. The graduates are a tribute to her interested work of forming character and training minds.

Celia Merriam, a former pupil said:- "It was Truth for Truth's sake at the Howard School. We remember how wonderfully she trusted us and how worthwhile she felt it to help develop every one of us, not only in mind but in character. She helped show us that no one is in reality, insignificant, and it was about the biggest lesson in the deeper 'humanities' which we could have learned. She opened our eyes to so many interesting and beautiful things." She made the pupils feel they wanted to be a credit to the School. She had wonderful courage, patience, cheerfulness, under the dragging trial of continued ill-health, combined with her great energy and activity in her work.

In 1869-70 she took a trip in Europe for sixteen months with Mary Hayward. Clover Hooper, an old friend, made it possible with a present of $5000. It was a great enrichment to her and a needed rest.

Her sister, Sophy, and Miss Simmons kept the school while Kate was traveling and her sister Lucinda did the housekeeping.

The school continued until June, 1890. Miss Kate gave it up when it was in the full tide of success and did not let it drift away from her. A reunion was given and a silver tea set presented. This was a white stone in her life. Reunions continued until 1932. There is now a room in the Science Building, Springfield, dedicated to Catharine Howard. The alumnae of the school have established a fund to maintain a scientific library which is open to the public. The three sisters moved to 99 School Street in 1892. Kate died December 1, 1897, in Springfield, with her life work well done. Catharine's letters were published by her sister Sophy after her death.

EMILY WILLIAMS⁷, born Dec. 21, 1840, daughter of Charles and Elizabeth B. (Dwight) Howard, on the Armory Grounds in Springfield. She went to school in Springfield, later the Sanburn School in Concord, also the Agassiz School. She started a small school in Springfield, 1861-62. When her sister Kate was well enough she took it over in 1863, then Emmie retired. Emily was to be married to Dr. Nathan Hayward, brother of James W. Hayward, but three weeks before the wedding he died, August 16, 1866, while helping in an epidemic of cholera in St. Louis. This affected her very deeply. She always held his memory very dear to her. After her sister Sally married Jim Hayward, she went to live with them. She was interested in the Dorchester School for Girls, the New England Trade School for Boys and was guardian for several girls. In later years she lived in Springfield with her sister Sophy, also at 7 Brown Street, Cambridge with her niece and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. Andrews. In 1886 James Thacher Hayward died, the father of her fiancé. He left her a legacy which made Emily's finances a great deal easier from then on.

She had real executive ability. Mrs. Chesley writes:- "Miss Howard was much interested in social work. In 1896 she did volunteer work, looking over old records of the Associated Charities (Family Welfare) and she saw that people asked for small amounts of relief. She wondered why these people couldn't with very little self denial save enough to tide themselves over at least for all the minor financial crises of life. Miss Octavia Hill at this time in London started a Home Saving Society by organizing a group of women to call once a week to collect from anyone who signified a desire to join the Society. So at the age of 60, Emmie started the Home Savings in Cambridge with the help of Miss Sarah L. Howe. (Boston had already an organization running.) In the 20 years they collected, there was $408,128.44 of which $338,435.40 was deposited. During these years Miss Howard always came down from Springfield to preside as president at the monthly meetings. Before the work ended the collectors were going out at noon time to eleven factories to help the workers save. In 1920 Miss Howard decided that the banks and schools were doing so much to encourage savings that the collectors could be used in the community to better advantage."

While she lived in Springfield she had a dog, Jack, who was a great pleasure to her. Emily belonged to the Twentieth Century Club, and the Women's City Club of Boston. She built the Peterborough House where the family went in the summers starting in 1904.

In 1911 she bought tenement houses in Cambridge to try to improve the standard of living for the negroes. She hoped it would encourage others to do the same. The fall before she died she bought Mr. Shedd's 250 acre farm in Peterboro, N. H., and called it her yacht, as she didn't expect profit from the purchase.

She had a great love of human beings and a desire to help them. Young people were a great joy to her. She was much interested in world affairs and had traveled in Europe.

Emmie had wise understanding combined with a keen sense of humor.

She died June 3, 1923, in Boston, age 82.

"THEOPHILUS⁶, born in 1774 in Exeter, N. H., son of Jonathan and Lydia Hopkinson, moved to Maine and married Susannah Allen of Readfield, Maine, in 1800, and had eleven children, five daughters and six sons. He had emigrated to New Sharon, Franklin County, Maine, from Gilmanton, New Hampshire, soon after he was 21 years old. His son Thomas said of him:- "He worked on Mr. Shaw's farm, but soon exchanged it for the farm he lived on the rest of his life. He had little education. He commenced his farm and made a log hut. He was a man about 5 ft. 11 in., wide shoulders and athletic in form. He had strong powers of mind, a steady judgment and temper, and was truly honest and upright in his dealings. He was a religious man of the Baptist persuasion, and much respected among his neighbors. He was a kind husband and a very indulgent and affectionate father. He never spared himself, and by excessive labor, his constitution was broken up at the age of 45. He worked hard himself but wanted to spare the strength of his children. He died about 1840, age 66."

ANCESTORS STARTING WITH

HAYWARD GENEALOGY

Introduction

The Hayward family embraces those who spell the name: Heyward, Heaward, Haywood, Heywood and Hailward. The name is derived from the Saxon and signifies the keeper of the common herd or cattle of a town, "heig," "hay," and "ward," a keeper.

This book gives all the descendants of James Warren Hayward⁸, born February 2, 1833, and the direct line of his ancestors, starting with Thomas Hayward¹ who came to America from England and settled in Duxbury before 1638. He was one of the original proprietors of Bridgewater, Massachusetts, in 1651. In the appendix the ancestors of the wives of the Hayward line are given.

The abbreviations used are as follows: m., married; d., died; b., born; bapt., baptized. The Arabic numbers before a child's name identifies the description of that person subsequently. The Roman numerals tell at a glance the number of children in the family. For example on page 65, Nathaniel appears as 10-II. Nathaniel³ (See below 10), tenth person in the direct line. The Arabic number "10" identifies the person described on page 65. Roman numeral II indicates that he was the second child of Nathaniel². The generation in relation to the first settler is indicated by a Note "3," that he is in the third generation.

Sixth Generation

38

DR. NATHAN HAYWARD

Born Sept. 17, 1762 or 1763

Died June 16, 1848

"Dr. Nathan Hayward⁶, born in East Bridgewater, Sept. 17, 1762 or 1763, son of Nathan and Susanna (Latham) Hayward and graduated from Harvard College in 1785. When he was a young man he wanted to go to the wars, but his father was opposed to his going. One day as he was standing under a tree in front of the house, the tree was struck by lightning and Nathan was unhurt. After that his father said he was in the hands of Providence and might go if he wished.

"When Dr. Hayward came home to Bridgewater from the Indian War in the West, (a continuation of the Revolution,) he being in the army from 1786 to 1795, as surgeon, Dr. Thacher his brother-in-law wanted him to settle in Plymouth.

"He fell in love with Joanna Winslow, daughter of Pelham and Joanna (White) Winslow of Plymouth, and they were married Dec. 6, 1795, in Providence, R. I., as she was too poor to have a wedding. (For the Winslow Family see the Winslow Genealogy in Appendix.)

"The doctor had an immense practice in Plymouth spreading all over the country, Manomet, South Pond and all about. He was very much beloved by all his patients and never was known to bring pressure for payment, in fact many of his patients had not paid him and he left special directions in his will to cancel the bills of the poor. The doctor was also high Sheriff of Plymouth County. Dr. Hayward was fair, blue-eyed, six feet tall and very handsome. He was noble and generous. He died June 16, 1848, 84 or 85

"His widow outlived him and died Nov. 17, 1866, age 93. She was fair with a pink and white complexion, light brown hair and blue eyes. She had remarkable conversational powers and great vivacity."

Told by Aunt Russell to Mary Hayward

The picture of the house they lived in on Main Street is at the back of book. It was built in 1685 and was bought by Cornelius White in 1741. So it came to the Hayward family through the Winslows. It was in the family for 6 generations. The family records say Dr. Nathan was born Sept. 17, 1763. Vital records say Sept. 17, 1762, in East Bridgewater.

JAMES THACHER HAYWARD

Born Feb. 19, 1802

Died Mar. 12, 1886

James Thacher Hayward⁷, born Feb. 19, 1802, in Plymouth, son of Dr. Nathan and Joanna (Winslow) Hayward. He expected to go to college but his father, a not too prosperous doctor, had signed a note and when it came due the money for his education had to go for that purpose. He then packed up and went to work in a counting house in Boston. He became a grocery merchant with Dane Dana and Co. and subsequently he was Treasurer, and for a time President of the Boston Sugar Refinery. He was the businessman of the family. James married Sarah Appleton Dawes, daughter of Judge Thomas and Margaret (Greenleaf) Dawes of Boston, Sept. 2, 1828. (For the Dawes Family see Dawes Genealogy in Appendix.) They lived in Boston, later Roxbury on Ellis Street. There is a picture of the Ellis Street house at the back of the book. They went there about 1860. She died Sept. 27, 1878. Her life was one of almost perfect peace and happiness. He died Mar. 12, 1886, age 84. He had a beautiful, strong, well life and joined in all the family pleasures. He was loved by all.

Children:-

50-I Dr. Nathan Hayward⁸, b. Jan. 6, 1830. He graduated from Harvard College in 1850, and studied medicine in Germany. He was surgeon in the 20th Regiment in the Civil War, and had a horse shot from under him. He died Aug. 16, 1866 of cholera, three weeks before he was to marry Emily W. Howard, sister of Sarah Bancroft Howard. After his death the Generals gave a great tribute to his work as a surgeon. He was artistic and did some interesting sketches. Sketches of College Pranks were published in 1850 called "College Scenes." They are now at Harvard. See below a pen sketch of his made of "Hospital, Petersburg, Va., 1864" while in the war.

51-II James Warren⁸, b. Feb. 2, 1833, in Boston. See below (51).

52-III Mary Chilton⁸, b. Dec. 21, 1834; m. Henry Mitchell, son of William and Lydia (Coleman) Mitchell (Quakers) (He was brother of Maria Mitchell.), Sept. 20, 1876. This was her 1st m., his 3rd. She d. Mar. 6, 1902. He d. Dec. 1, 1900, age 76.

53-IV Margaret Greenleaf⁸, b. Nov. 25, 1837; m. Henry Mitchell, Sept. 7, 1873. This was her 1st m., his 2nd. She died Feb. 19, 1875. She was the mother of Mary Hayward (Mitchell) Havemeyer⁹, b. Aug. 14, 1874; m. John Havemeyer of New York, Oct. 5, 1899. They had She 1 July 2 four children:

JAMES WARREN HAYWARD

Born Feb. 2, 1833

Died Feb. 10, 1923

James Warren Hayward⁸, b. Feb. 2, 1833, on Purchase Street, Boston, son of James Thacher and Sarah Appleton (Dawes) Hayward. At the age of 10 he entered school in Northboro as his mother was not well and he was not strong. At 16 he went to New York and stayed with his cousins the George Warrens, and he worked in a counting house, Crocker and Warren, probably grocers. While there he went to the opera every Saturday night during the season, but he had to leave by 10 P.M. as that was the family rule, so he never saw the end of the last act. He got so he did not mind in years that followed whether he saw the end or not. At 21 he went around the world in the clipper ship "Swordfish" and expected to stay in China to be in the tea business. Before he reached the Orient, the telegraphic communications had started, changing the business conditions. Therefore he did not stay in the East. He was away for a year, and the Captain of the "Swordfish" brought a good many coolies back with him. When the cook contracted smallpox and died, Mr. Hayward, who had had varioloid (a light case of smallpox) volunteered to do the cooking. The cook was buried at sea and Mr. Hayward, called Jim, read the service.

In 1856 Jim went into partnership with his uncle, George P. Hayward, as a tea taster for wholesale businesses. He was in the Civil War for 9 months, serving in the 44th Mass. Company. After being in the war he went back into business with his uncle.

James was a loving husband and father, forgiving, but sometimes quick-tempered. He was quite shy. He married Sarah Bancroft Howard, daughter of Charles and Elizabeth Buckminster (Dwight) Howard in Springfield, Dec. 25, 1866. (For Howard Family see Howard Genealogy in Appendix.) They lived at 58 Cedar Street where the children were born. A picture of it is shown at the back of the book. Fifty-eight is the left half. About 1877 he had pneumonia and his eyes began to bother him, so gradually the tea tasting business dwindled. He went into town every day to the office for many years as long as he could see, until he was over 60. The family moved to 85 Brattle Street, Cambridge, in 1891, where they lived until they died. His wife, Sarah, died July 5, 1922, and he died Feb. 10, 1923. The picture of the Victorian Gothic House at the corner of Mason and Brattle Streets is at the back of the book.

Sally, his wife, was a beautiful character, rather shy but a most understanding person; many came to her for advice as she was able to get at the heart of a situation. Jim and Sally had a very happy life together. They fully enjoyed their Golden Wedding in 1916.

EMILY HOWARD HAYWARD

Born August 30, 1867

EMILY HOWARD HAYWARD⁹, born August 30, 1867, at 58 Cedar Street, Roxbury, daughter of James Warren and Sarah Bancroft (Howard) Hayward. A seven months baby. She is very fond of reading and gets great pleasure in the books of her library. For many years she enjoyed going to hear the Boston Symphony Orchestra, hearing some of the first Concerts in Symphony Hall. Now that she is not able to go to the Hall, Aunt Emily likes to listen to the music over a new victrola just given to her.

Her mother was not strong so Emily took over the housekeeping in spite of lameness when her sister Margaret was married. She kept accounts of her father when he had trouble with his eyes.

She now lives at 85 Brattle Street in Cambridge with Margaret MacIlhatton. She died April 26, 1953, age 85.

HAYWARD-ANDREWS

MARGARET GREENLEAF HAYWARD⁹, born Oct. 7, 1869, at 58 Cedar Street, in Roxbury, Mass., daughter of James Warren and Sarah Bancroft (Howard) Hayward. Middle name was changed from (Dorcas)

Her son writes:- "Margaret, the youngest of the Hayward girls, was educated in the Roxbury schools and later in Springfield at the Howard School for three years, graduating in 1888. Reunions of the School continued thru 1932. She had an interest in singing, spending many hours joyfully singing duets with her sister Emily. Her fine contralto voice won her the role of Esmaralda in a performance given by the Cambridge Dramatic Club in 1895.

"Her first interest was her family. Her gentle, almost naive, approach to her husband and children, was returned by them with true devotion. She liked nothing better than to spend the evening by the fire, darning socks, or letting out hems while her husband played solitaire, sometimes bridge which he loved.

"Her love of walking, picking blueberries, or gardening was satisfied in her summers in Peterborough, N.H., where she stayed with her family, her Mother and Father and sister at her Aunt Emmie's and Sophy Howard's summer home.

"In Cambridge her only club was the Sewing Club, which met once a month for luncheon at one of the members' homes. She attended this regularly and enjoyed the devoted friendship of all the members.

"She also took an active interest in the First Church (Unitarian) in Cambridge and attended services each Sunday and participated in the Women's Alliance.

"She was married June 8, 1901, to Edward Augustine Andrews, her first cousin, who was in the real estate business. (For the Andrews Family see the Andrews Genealogy.) They lived at 7 Brown Street the rest of their lives. She d. Mar. 4, 1936. He d. Sept. 28, 1936.

"There were many less fortunate families in Cambridge in which she took a real interest. She would call on these families regularly, give them clothes, make jobs for them and never forget the children at Christmas.

"Through her Aunt Emmie Howard she was a collector for the Home Savings which made it possible for people to save small sums of money each month and receive interest from a consolidated savings account, long before banks were interested in small accounts. This led into working with the negroes who became her real friends. She was also interested in the Young

DWIGHT HAYWARD ANDREWS¹⁰, born Feb. 13, 1908, son of Edward Augustine Andrews and Margaret Greenleaf (Hayward) of Cambridge. He went to Buckingham and Browne & Nichols in Cambridge, and then later to the Gunnery School in Washington, Connecticut. He was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1931.

Dwight spent the summer of 1931 traveling in Europe, hiring a car and going over 5,000 miles with his friend Pete Phelps. It was a most exciting experience. He is a real estate and insurance broker and a partner in the firm of Ellis and Andrews, Harvard Square, Cambridge.

Following his Father's interest in social and civic organizations, Dwight is on the Board and Executive Committee of the Cambridge T. B. and Health Assn. of Cambridge, of which his Father was president at one time; active in the First Church (Unitarian) in Cambridge where his Father was Supt. of the Sunday School; Director of the Cambridge Community Fund Council.

He married (Julia) Matilda Shreve Wallace, daughter of Henry Edward and Julia Elmo (Miller) Wallace of Jamaica Plain, Boston. (Formerly, both parents were from Philadelphia.) Oct. 5, 1940. Dwight was in the Army of World War II, being discharged a Staff Sergeant in Feb. 1946.

HAYWARD-LLOYD

NATHAN HAYWARD⁹, born Aug. 27, 1872, at 58 Cedar Street, Roxbury, son of James Warren and Sarah Bancroft (Howard) Hayward. He went to the Roxbury Latin School, was graduated from Harvard College in 1895, and received a S. B. degree from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1897. He also taught at Tech for one year. Then he went to Philadelphia where he worked in the Bell Telephone Company as chief engineer for many years. Afterwards he became President of the American Dredging Company which position he held until just before his death. He was very methodical and carried through anything he set out to do, which also carried over into his business; all details had been settled before he passed on. He married Anna Howell Lloyd, daughter of Malcolm and Anna (Howell) Lloyd of Philadelphia, Pa., Apr. 30, 1907.

He was director of several Pennsylvania corporations, including the Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Company, Philadelphia Belt Line Railroad, and the Philadelphia Savings Fund Society. He was also a member of the New England Society of Pennsylvania, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and Telephone Pioneers of America.

Nate Hayward was President of the Associated Harvard Clubs, the Harvard Club of Philadelphia, and was a Harvard Overseer for fourteen years.

James Purdon, a classmate wrote:- "Within the last few days of his life he had received among other distinctions, a University appointment to the Committee Chairmanship of the Graduate School of Engineering, and was to preside at the coming presentation ceremonies of the Harvard Aiken Calculating Machine.

"If one attribute more than another could be said of Nate Hayward's character, it was perhaps his sincerity and singleness of purpose in all he undertook -- to do the job before him completely and perfectly to the utmost of his high ability. This intensity of determination to achieve the best that lay within his powers marked his entire life and brought successively the rewards which brilliantly studded his course of progress. His discerning judgment was ever focused on the issue, the ultimate result, without thought of self or the personal element to tinge it; and at the same time in striving for this goal, his consideration for those in his employ was always his unfailing concern."

The Bell Telephone said:- "We have always prized his sensitive zeal for progress in the operation of the Company and his devotion to the welfare of the men and women of the organization of whose interests he was so completely aware."

Also at the Franklin Institute where he was President:- "There should ever be progress, but never departure from the finest traditions of the founder, was his unfaltering creed.

"He was utterly unassuming, caring nothing for show or effect, devoid of any atom of conceit or self-consciousness which often marks the successful man. Nate Hayward lived his life undeviatingly practicing, but never preaching the finest concept of moral conduct in his every act and word through boyhood, youth and manhood. Seeing only the best in others, when trust and confidence in a friend seemed sometimes shaken and misplaced, he silently suffered; but loyal in his constancy, always his faith in fundamental worth remained unwavering. Kindness and understanding were to the end enduring trusts of his lovable nature. Truly as one who knew him best has said of him, 'He brought out every hidden goodness, by his faith in it, and blessed with abiding happiness whomever his presence touched.'"

He died June 21, 1944, in Wayne, Pennsylvania. His widow survives him.

Children:-

- 61-I Anna Howell Hayward¹⁰, b. Feb. 13, 1908; taught in the Shipley School until she went to Greece in World War II with U.N.R.R.A. to help care for the Greek children. She also started hostels for young children where it was possible in that country. Her work was most valuable. She married Clifton Lisle of Wayne, Pa., son of Robert Pattern and Fanny Hollingsworth (Lyman) Lisle, a teacher in the William Penn Charter School for Boys, on Sept. 7, 1946, in Manchester, Mass. In the war he was a member of the American Military Government in Austria. They now live in Wayne, Pennsylvania.

DAWES GENEALOGY

First Generation

"WILLIAM DAWES¹, son of William of Sudbury, Suffolk Co., England, born 1620. Came to New England in the Planter, April, 1635. He was a mason by trade. He first settled in Braintree where he married Susanna, daughter of John L. and Susanna Mills of Braintree about 1641, and there his eldest son was born. About 1652 they moved to Boston where he bought an estate adjoining land of James Barnes, also part of his son Ambrose' land. Besides this William owned tenements on the lane from Watermill to Winnesimmett Ferry, which he conveyed to John Nichols (son-in-law). William was a freeman, May 6, 1646. He did work on Fort Hill, Jan. 28, 1656.

"He and his wife were members of the First Church, but when that Church joined the opponents of the Synod in 1662, they both withdrew and appear among the founders of the Third Church of Old South in 1669. It will be remembered that this was not a mere sectarian schism but an important political movement. The object of the Dawes and the Synodists was the extension of Church membership, with the accompanying right to vote and to hold office, to all who had been baptized; while the more rigid Puritans wished to confine its communicants to those who had experienced regeneration. The political rights of a considerable part of the community were at stake. Gov. Bellingham of the First Church called together a council of the colony and soon after the House of Deputies 'espoused the cause of the First Church.' 'The election for the next General Court turned chiefly throughout to the colony upon the question of old church and new church,' and resulted favorably to Dawes and his associates. But it was not until 1674 that the 23 feminine seceders, including Mrs. Dawes, whose covenants had been declared forfeited by the old church, were admitted to the new (the Old South Church) by advice of a Council. William Dawes died March 24, 1703, age 86."

"AMBROSE* DAWES², born July 24, 1642, in Braintree, son of William and Susanna Dawes, was a mason and builder by trade; and early came to Boston, probably with his father, and became a member of the Third Church, September 7, 1670, and a freeman in 1671. He joined the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company in 1674 and soon attained the rank of lieutenant. In 1675 he was one of the threescore or more petitioners for precaution against the Indians who were then threatening the colony; and when the war against Philip broke out, he joined the colonial force serving during the winter of 1675. Because of his courage it probably kept him pretty constantly in the field at that dangerous time. He was not only a soldier, but a mason in building the new fort of Pemaquid, Maine, which was of stone. In 1686 he was appointed 'tything man' and in 1687, he bought a house which later was replaced by a cow pasture, I presume, on the common. After the great fire of 1696, his name appears among the petitioners for an amendment of the act regulating the use of brick in building. Ambrose married Mary, daughter of Thomas and Susannah Bumstead. She came from England in 1640. She was baptized April 24, 1642, and died May 22, 1706, age 54. Epitaph appears in Kings Chapel Burial Ground. Ambrose died Nov. 9, 1705. His wife survived him, dying a year later."

"COL. THOMAS DAWES⁵, born Aug. 5, 1731, in Boston, son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Underwood) Dawes. He joined the Third or Old South Church, Nov. 26, 1749, and for many years was the Deacon. He was by trade a mason and became one of the first great mechanics of Boston. He was the architect of the State House and of the Old Brattle Street Church. He was chosen coroner, 1759 and again, 1761. He was a high patriot and the caucuses were sometimes held in his garret. The Tories gave him the nickname of 'Jonathan Smoothing Plane.' He took so conspicuous a part in the early scenes of the Revolution as to draw upon himself the anger of the Royalists - his house at Purchase Street was sacked by the British troops before they left Boston. He was Colonel in 1773, which office he held until the provincial government was abolished. Upon the adoption of the State Constitution he became a friend of Hancock and began to figure in public life for which his talents, industry, health and patriotism well qualified him. In private he was active, firm, charitable and affable. He had a venerable appearance, grave deportment, rich dress, two silver locks. There is a portrait of Thomas Dawes at the back of book by G. Stuart. He died Jan. 2, 1809, age 76. He married Hannah, daughter of Increase and Ann (Gray) Blake, July, 1752.

Verses written for Peggy Greenleaf by Thomas Dawes between 1774 and 1780 when he was between the ages of 17 and 20 years old. She later became his wife. She tore out the fly leaf and wrote above at the top of the page: "I cut this out because I didn't deserve it."

"If in these pages one new thought you find
One touch expressive of a Poet's mind
One happy line of harmony and taste,
Or happier line, with more beauty graced,
Its humanizing influence on the heart
Thine is the praise, whose sweet communion taught
My heart to feel and into music wrought.
Then at thy feet this offering I resign,
Sure every labor of my life is thine
And rich is the reward if thou approve
The muses insense at the shrine of love."

HOPKINSON GENEALOGY

I have used New Style dating in this Genealogy.

Old and New Style Dating

"For twelve hundred years or more, previous to 1752, in most Christian countries the year commenced the 25th of March and is designated as O. S. Old Style. In 1753, by act of Parliament, in England and in all of her dominions, the year was made to commence Jan. 1st and designated N. S. or New Style. In this book dates conform to new style."

THEOPHILUS⁶, born in 1774 in Exeter, N. H., son of Jonathan and Lydia Hopkinson, moved to Maine and married Susannah Allen of Readfield, Maine, in 1800, and had eleven children, five daughters and six sons. He had emigrated to New Sharon, Franklin County, Maine, from Gilmanton, New Hampshire, soon after he was 21 years old. His son Thomas said of him:- "He worked on Mr. Shaw's farm, but soon exchanged it for the farm he lived on the rest of his life. He had little education. He commenced his farm and made a log hut. He was a man about 5 ft. 11 in., wide shoulders and athletic in form. He had strong powers of mind, a steady judgment and temper, and was truly honest and upright in his dealings. He was a religious man of the Baptist persuasion, and much respected among his neighbors. He was a kind husband and a very indulgent and affectionate father. He never spared himself, and by excessive labor, his constitution was broken up at the age of 45. He worked hard himself but wanted to spare the strength of his children. He died about 1840, age 66."

Autobiography of Thomas Hopkinson

- 35-III Frank⁸, b. about 1838; unmarried. Lived with his mother; d. Apr. 16, 1932, probably over 90 years.
- 36-IV Henry Malcolm⁸, b. Feb. 1, 1840. See below (36).

Eighth Generation

HENRY MALCOLM HOPKINSON⁸, b. Feb. 1, 1840, son of Jonathan and Susan Dutton (Boynton) Hopkinson in New Sharon, Maine. When Henry was under five years, the family moved to Fort Fairfield, Maine, by ox cart from the southwest to the northeast of the state. He worked on the farm, so when an old man in Wardsboro, Vermont, the regular helper being ill, Mr. Hopkinson was the only person that could milk the cow. He went to the Civil War from Colby College, signing up with the 16th Maine Volunteers from 1863-65. He would not be an officer or Chaplain but just a common soldier. He was graduated from Colby College in 1868 and from Andover Newton Theological Institution in 1871.

He married June 28, 1871, Sarah Cyphers Rigby, daughter of George and Georgianna (Estes) Rigby in Maine. She was born April 29, 1844, and died April 28, 1907, in Westford, Vermont. Rev. Hopkinson was a Baptist Missionary to the Po. Kerens in Burma, 1871-76. Afterwards he was Minister in Maine and Vermont.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the general principles of the theory of the structure of the atom. It is shown that the structure of the atom is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are in agreement with the experimental facts.

2. In the second part of the paper, the author discusses the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the problem of the structure of the nucleus. It is shown that the structure of the nucleus is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are in agreement with the experimental facts.

3. In the third part of the paper, the author discusses the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the problem of the structure of the molecule. It is shown that the structure of the molecule is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are in agreement with the experimental facts.

4. In the fourth part of the paper, the author discusses the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the problem of the structure of the crystal. It is shown that the structure of the crystal is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are in agreement with the experimental facts.

5. In the fifth part of the paper, the author discusses the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the problem of the structure of the liquid. It is shown that the structure of the liquid is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are in agreement with the experimental facts.

6. In the sixth part of the paper, the author discusses the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the problem of the structure of the gas. It is shown that the structure of the gas is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are in agreement with the experimental facts.

7. In the seventh part of the paper, the author discusses the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the problem of the structure of the plasma. It is shown that the structure of the plasma is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are in agreement with the experimental facts.

8. In the eighth part of the paper, the author discusses the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the problem of the structure of the solid. It is shown that the structure of the solid is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are in agreement with the experimental facts.

9. In the ninth part of the paper, the author discusses the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the problem of the structure of the liquid crystal. It is shown that the structure of the liquid crystal is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are in agreement with the experimental facts.

10. In the tenth part of the paper, the author discusses the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the problem of the structure of the polymer. It is shown that the structure of the polymer is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are in agreement with the experimental facts.

11. In the eleventh part of the paper, the author discusses the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the problem of the structure of the biological system. It is shown that the structure of the biological system is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are in agreement with the experimental facts.

12. In the twelfth part of the paper, the author discusses the application of the theory of the structure of the atom to the problem of the structure of the universe. It is shown that the structure of the universe is determined by the laws of quantum mechanics, and that the laws of quantum mechanics are in agreement with the experimental facts.

He married 2nd, July 2, 1919, widow Phianna (Perry) in West Wardsboro Vermont, and he died April 8, 1922, age 82. She died, his widow, April 13, 1932.

Children by 1st wife:-

- 37-I George⁹, b. Oct. 20, 1873, in Rangoon, Burma, India; m. Helen Wright Andrews, July 14, 1906. He died May 27, 1933. She died Jan. 9, 1943. See below (37).
- 38-II Frank⁹, b. Mar. 14, 1875; d. April 12, 1875 in India.
- 39-III Henry⁹, b. June 27, 1880, in West Wardsboro, Vermont; m. Edith Claflin, July 26, 1919, daughter of Charles Claflin, in Winchester, Mass. He was a teacher at the West Acton High School until June 1950, when he retired. He died March 17, 1951 in West Acton, Mass. He taught Math. there for 20 years and was much loved by all who knew him.

Ninth Generation

Hopkinson-Andrews

DR. GEORGE HOPKINSON⁹, b. Oct. 20, 1873, son of Henry Malcolm and Sarah Cyphers (Rigby) Hopkinson in Rangoon, Burma, India. He graduated from Brown University 1896 and Harvard Medical School 1905. He married Helen Wright Andrews, daughter of Alexander and Mary Dwight (Howard) Andrews, July 14, 1906. He was an eye, ear, nose and throat doctor and practiced in New York City, Akron, Ohio, and Boston. He founded the Berkeley Preparatory School in 1907, which he directed until not long before he died May 27, 1933. He was a very fine teacher and had a brilliant mind. George Hopkinson was a devoted husband and father. He had a fine sense of humor and always gave one a very good time whenever you were with him.

His wife assumed the responsibilities of the school after his death until she sold it in 1935. She was born Sept. 29, 1875, and died Jan. 9, 1943 in Cambridge, Mass.
